A. E. Rosica & Co., Inc. (AER&CO) announced today that it has successfully closed an equity investment transaction between its client, RJM Waste Equipment Company (Easley, SC) and Frontier Capital (Charlotte, NC) – see attached tombstone.

"We are very pleased to have been a part of this transaction," commented Bert Rosica, a Principal with AER&CO. "The capabilities and experience of the RJM team made it easier to put this deal together in what otherwise is a tough market. It also helped that the RJM and Frontier teams seemed to have meshed very well through the transaction process." Mr. Rosica concluded.

Ron McCracken, President and CEO of RJM, also had positive comments about the transaction, "This investment gives us the capital we need to execute our plans for growth, including new manufacturing facilities in Phoenix. The Phoenix plant will enable us to effectively serve the southwest and west coast markets where we already have relationships with some of the industries leading service providers." McCracken continued, "We are very happy AER&CO was able to find a strong financial partner like Frontier that understands our business. We are really looking forward to working with the Frontier team as we grow our company."

Richard MacLean, a Partner with Frontier Capital, agreed with McCracken noting, "RJM represents a great opportunity for us. We are investing in a good basic manufacturing company with a strong management team and a sound business plan. We look forward to helping RJM grow and are prepared to invest additional capital, as appropriate, to help fuel that growth."
